Increasing Your Water Conservation It is now mandatory!

In response to the ongoing severe drought, on Tuesday July 15 the State Water Resources Control Board approved an emergency regulation to ensure water agencies, their customers and state residents increase water conservation or face possible fines or other enforcement.

How does this effect you? Well, most Californians use more water outdoors than indoors. In some areas, 50 percent or more of daily water use is for lawns and outdoor landscaping. With this regulation, Californians are expected to stop:

- Washing down driveways and sidewalks
- Watering of outdoor landscapes that cause excess runoff
- Using a hose to wash a motor vehicle, unless the hose is fitted with a shut-off nozzle
- Using potable water in a fountain or decorative water feature, unless the water is recirculated

Local agencies like Yountville could ask courts to fine water users up to $500 per day for failure to implement conservation requirements in addition to their existing authorities and processes.

"We are facing the worst drought impact that we or our grandparents have ever seen," said State Water Board Chair Felicia Marcus. "And, more important, we have no idea when it will end. This drought's impacts are being felt by communities all over California. Field are fallowed, communities are running out of water, fish and wildlife will be devastated. The least that urban Californians can do is to not waste water on outdoor uses. It is in their self-interest to conserve more, NOW, to avoid far more harsh restrictions, if the drought lasts into the future. These regulations are meant to spark awareness of the seriousness of the situation, and could be expanded if the drought wears on and people do not act."

The Town of Yountville has a special webpage devoted to water conservation. It can be found at www.townofyountville.com/water and contains many tips that can be used by water users to lower their consumption.
